CUBAN VICTORY.

The Battle at Holguin a Royal
Victory for the Patriot
Forces. Over One
Thousand Killed

About 3,000 Dons Ambushed and Slaughtered Before Their
Retreat. Cubans Feel Encouraged.

New York, March 3.—Reports of the recent battle at Holguin, province of Santiago de Cuba, have been received in New York. The victory, as the battle being a Spanish, was a disastrous defeat, followed by a retreat on the part of the Spanish forces.

Gen. Linares commanded the Spanish forces on the island, and started with them from Holguin to Santiago de Cuba, but in a regular death trap, a valley between natural rock formations ten miles out of Holguin, about 300 Cubans attacked a large Spanish force and fought for four days, killing, it is estimated, over 1,000 Spanish and routing the Dons completely.

Every day Spanish dead were buried and the wounded sent back to Holguin. Gen. Garcia's command did not reach its full strength until the fifth day after the fighting began. On this day the Spanish columns retreated in confusion, carrying the wounded to Holguin and leaving 200 dead on the field.

The Cuban loss in the five days of fighting was less than fifty killed. The real Spanish loss will never be known, as the dead and wounded were taken from the field at night. It is stated that nearly 1,000 were killed and wounded. From word received from Holguin, it was learned that there were several companies almost annihilated by the Cuban fire.

Other letters from the Cuban army report it in good condition, and one from ex-President Caceres stated that the whole eastern portion of the island is safe in the control of the Cuban civil government.

Bound For Havana.
Portsmouth, N. H., March 3.—The congressional party, which is to visit Havana and learn the true situation, so that they may act more satisfactorily on the Cuban question, came here yesterday and left for Havana on the yacht Ancon. It is thought this visit means that President McKinley is preparing to take some decisive step in the Cuban controversy.

Lexington, Ky., March 3.—Current street reports of two well-developed cases of smallpox in the southern end of town among negroes gave the people a general scare yesterday morning. An investigation proved that the cases were not smallpox.

POWERFUL EXPLOSIVES.

Discovered at Last That the
Maine's Back Was Broken
When She Sank in the Harbor at Havana.

Certain That a Submarine Mine
Rented the Battleship Asunder.
Keel of the Vessel Split.
Inquiry Nearly Finished.

Havana, Cuba, March 3.—The Maine's back was broken. This latest discovery made by the expert divers not only supports the information published last Friday concerning the disclosure of paramount importance made by Keaney Woodson, but convinces those in charge of the submarine investigation beyond all shadow of a doubt that a submarine mine rent the battleship asunder. The keel of the ship has been found in two pieces, the nearest ends of which are now separated by a distance of two and a half to three feet.

The sections are no longer lying in one straight line, but show the effect of the force exerted from port to starboard, noticeable in no other wreckage.

It is evident, from the discovery of the present condition of the keel, that section of the bottom having been found twenty nine feet from its natural position, that the bottom was wrenched from the keel by the first explosion and driven upward. The keel itself was forced in the middle until it was broken in two and then collapsed in two sections, which fell in the position in which the divers found them.

Persons familiar with the results of high explosives and with wrecks above and under water, say the breaking of the keel as now disclosed could not possibly have been done by an internal explosion of a vessel alone. In fact, this latest discovery of the manner in which the Maine's back was broken, taken together with earlier disclosures made public, has convinced the men working about the wreck that further investigation as to the manner in which the ship was blown up is perfectly useless. They consider the question solved beyond doubt.

The board of inquiry will, of course, leave the evidence as to the wounding apart of the keel. The divers and officers in charge will be summoned to Key West if the board does not return to Havana. The finding among the American naval officers in Havana is that beyond the recovery of the dead yet remaining on the wreck, all useful work in connection with the Maine has been done.

L. Mera have been sent from here to report on the situation at Washington, warning them against voting for appropriation for raising the Maine, saying that the work of the Maine, say, millions, but would not only cost the information would not add anything to the matter regarding the nature of the explosion.

RELIEF BOAT
Will Be Sent by the Government to Succor Starving Cubans.

Washington, March 3.—Secretary Long has decided to send a naval vessel to Cuba at once with forty or fifty tons of provisions for the relief of the suffering reconcentrated. The vessel will go to Matanzas or Santiago. It is said an emergency exists that makes it necessary to dispatch provisions at once in order to succor the starving. The vessel to be sent will be selected this afternoon.

It was subsequently decided to send two vessels with the relief supplies. The Montgomery will take supplies to Matanzas and the Nashville supplies to Sagua la Grande. The vessels will not stop in Cuban waters, but will return immediately after delivering their supplies, which were furnished by the New York Cuban Relief Committee.

McKinley's Sweeping Declaration
Washington, March 3.—President McKinley's latest position in regard to the critical Spanish situation can be stated in his own words. To a business man of national reputation, who was a friend of Mr. McKinley's before his election to the presidency, he said: "You may rest assured there will not be war with my consent, except for a cause which will satisfy good men here, the nations of Europe and (with a pause) Almighty God."

Intervention by the United States for the pacification of Cuba, without special reference to the Maine disaster may soon become the administration policy.

It can be authoritatively stated that every scrap of correspondence in the state department relating to the Cuban situation is being prepared for transmittal to congress. It is intended to go even a step further and send to congress all the dispatches from Madrid bearing on the Spanish-Cuban situation.

If Spain promptly pays the indemnity required, the policy of intervention will only be postponed a sufficient length of time to avoid the appearance of malice inspired by the destruction of the Maine. As wired yesterday, one of the leading republican senators said, after a long and confidential conversation with the president:

The danger does not lie in the Maine disaster. I expect that will be closed favorably. The real danger lies in the settlement of the Cuban question.

The most that high Washington officials expect from the naval board is the verdict:

"We were blown up by some external cause, but we cannot prove how or by whom it was done."

This fairly represents the view of most of the president's advisers. A few still adhere to the accident theory.

The board of inquiry has been instructed by the navy department to pursue every clue in making its investigation and thus leave no loophole for future adverse criticism.

After Gardy's Shoes.

Calhoun, Ky., March 3.—Mr. L. P. Tanner, of Owensboro, who is attending court, was asked if he intended entering the race for congress in this district.

"Yes, I am a candidate," was his answer.

The race is probably already made up, with L. P. Tanner, of Daviess, Win McLean, of Henderson, and Henry Allen, of Union. Dr. Clardy will not be a candidate for reelection.

Morgantown, N. C., March 3.—An old Indian doctor and a little girl who kept house for him have been found hanging from trees near their cabin at the head of Irish creek. The two came here about a year ago and spent most of their time hunting herbs. Thirteen had been made against the old man.

War Preparations Continue to Be Pushed Very Rapidly at Every

Nervous.

Washington, March 3.—Secretary Long has no news to give out from the Court of Inquiry. He does not know when the investigation will be completed. In the meantime war preparations are being hurried as fast as possible at all the arsenals in the country. Orders for all kinds of military stores are being filled rapidly. Spain is afraid that the United States warships at Manila, in the Philippine Islands will attack her forts, which they would do immediately in case of war.

STATE LEGISLATION.

Frankfort, Ky., March 3.—The refusal of the senate to ride over the governor's veto of the prison bill has added to the tangled condition of affairs here, and the members are in a badly mixed condition. They cannot decide what is going to happen, and it is said that both the McCord and Coker bills are doomed. The prison bill advocates think they can still pass this measure, after having caused the passage of the three bills. This is mere speculation, however, as the caucus will undoubtedly mix matters more than ever. It is not thought that a caucus can force the Coker bill through, and at least two senators are known to be ready to kill the measure when it comes up for passage over the governor's veto, which will be sent to the senate in a week. The McCord bill also will not get Bronston's or Henson's votes in a "deal out" now. Representatives Emmett Orr, Hobbs and others have been organizing against the Coker bill, saying they will be able to defeat the bill when it comes from the governor. Opponents of the Coker bill are very intent to get into the caucus on the McCord and prison commission bill. They say that they will not join the caucus if there is any attempt to bind them on any other measure.

LEAP TO HIS DEATH.

John Hackett, a Rouser on the John S. Hopkins, Jumped Overboard to Escape a Mob.

Hackett Was Charged With Stealing
a Pocketbook From a Minister at Cave-in-
Rock, Ill.

An exciting incident occurred day before yesterday aboard the John S. Hopkins to vary the monotony of the voyage up the Ohio. She reached the city early this morning. The tragedy referred to above occurred at Cave-in-Rock, Ill.

As the Hopkins was nearing the landing at Cave-in-Rock according to the Evansville Tribune a large crowd was seen congregated at the wharf. Capt. Gilbert, who is well acquainted with the customs of the people who inhabit the little village which was once the headquarters of the boldest gang of outlaws in the United States, knew trouble of some kind was brewing.

No demonstration was made and the boat was allowed to land and unload her cargo before any movement was made by the mob at the wharf. When the boat was ready to leave the landing the marshal of the village walked aboard and informed Capt. Gilbert that a deck hand on the boat had stolen a pocketbook belonging to a local minister. He asked and was granted permission to search the boat. The only crew he had to the identity of the negro was that he had a white hat. Two deck hands wearing white hats were found and quickly taken possession of by the mob, who held ropes around their necks and called them to the nearest telegraph pole, where arrangements were made to strangle them up. While the crowd was loudly cheering for their lives the marines discovered Hackett who was sleeping upon the deck with a white hat over his face. When Hackett was awakened by the marshal he looked around him and asked what place it was. When he was told Cave-in-Rock he tore loose from the marshal and made a dash for the forward side of the boat. As he reached the railing a number of the mob who had crowded upon the deck of the steamer sent a fusillade of bullets after him. He threw his hands up in the air and plunged into the water, and rose no more. Chastened out of their victim the mob still wanted to hang the two negroes who had been previously captured and taken with the greatest difficulty that was with the greatest difficulty that the officers of the boat persuaded the leaders of the mob to spare the lives of the deck hands.

Cave-in-Rock has always been noted for the hatred which its inhabitants bear the colored race and it is said there is not a negro living in the little village. The occurrence yesterday created the wildest excitement among the passengers of the boat. There is little probability that the leaders of the mob will ever be brought to justice.
